The Houses of Parliament. This is one of the most charming views in London, and the whole great mass of buildings (covering twice the area of the old palace of Edward the Confessor which once stood here) is seen at its very best, softened by the river mists. The Houses contain 1,100 rooms and in the Clock Tower is the enormous bell known as "Big Ben." Along the river front stand statues of all our English Sovereigns from William the Conqueror to Queen Victoria.

Dear Emi!
I write to you at patients request for exercise well. I come back to London in few weeks.
I saw the last Waiter here, he was in Brighton 3 days & is coming back again. I have no other news. Kindest Regards to your dear Mother
Yours truly
Karl

Perhaps I can see you
